I came to study in NSW as one of my relatives lives in Sydney. What I really loved about my school was that it had such an inclusive culture, where everyone would proactively help you out regardless your background and language ability.

Some achievements I am proud of include representing international students to deliver a speech during the school assembly on multicultural day, and performing a musical piece with my peers at Riverwood Public School's Open Day.

After completing the HSC, I studied a Bachelor of Computer Science and Technology at the University of Sydney. Upon graduating my degree, I spent a year preparing for immigration, then started my first full time job at VMware. I then undertook a few roles and am now running the graduate program for Professional Services across 5 regions in the Asia-Pacific and Japan.

One tip that I would like to give to future students is to step outside of your comfort zone and bravely embrace every opportunity coming your way. It can be a competition, a social event, or simply just talking to someone you've never met before. You will then realise how far these opportunities can take you, and how much you can grow.
